

Justice on Parade

What Happened

A six-year-old boy was enjoying a Fourth of July parade when a city vehicle ran over his foot and ankle. He required medical treatment and therapy, and developed post-traumatic stress.

His parents lost income taking him to appointments, and the entire family was traumatized.

The Obstacles

The family first hired a large billboard law firm, which dropped the case weeks later without explanation. To make matters worse, the incident report incorrectly blamed the child.

The city denied liability.

How We Fought Back

We stepped in and discovered video footage of the incident that proved the city's fault.

The Result

WE RESOLVED THE CASE IN THE FAMILY'S FAVOR.

The parents were grateful that someone cared enough to fight for them, and we were proud to bring justice to this young family while encouraging safety at future community events.
